What is Independent Study or Distance Learning?

Independent Study and Distance Learning are methods of delivering education outside the classroom. They bring the instructor, students, and course content together via phone, computers, FAX/modems, and printed materials.

The benefits of distance learning include:

- Convenient, flexible options for fulfilling diploma requirements
- Academically proven, well-produced curriculum developed by a faculty of outstanding scholars, practitioners, and instructional design specialists
- Opportunity to attain educational goals in a safe environment
- Opportunities for work experience credit and advanced college credit
- Programs tailored for highly motivated, committed, goal-oriented learners
- Accessible learning options for students with disabilities

What is Home Schooling?

Home Schooling is similar to distance learning but uses the parent as the teacher, facilitator, and record keeper.

With over 23 years' experience in distance learning, Parkridge offers a variety of course options and formats to meet your educational needs.
